Responsibilities of Citizenship

You are a citizen of the country where you were born. Usually, citizens live in their country as loyal members of society. Many countries also have options, so people who are not natural-born citizens can become citizens of that country. When they complete the requirements, they are called “naturalized citizens”.

As a citizen of your country, you have some rights, but you have duties and responsibilities, too. U.S. law, for example, guarantees the rights and duties of all citizens. It doesn't matter what U.S. state the citizen lives in, the rights are equal for all citizens. This is because the U.S. Constitution is the supreme law of the land. The rights of citizens of the United States are protected in the Bill of Rights. A citizen has the right to speak without restraint and the right to religious freedom. A citizen who is accused of a crime has a right to a fair trial and a trial with a jury. In exchange for their rights, citizens have duties and responsibilities.

Responsibilities of Citizenship

They should obey all laws. In wartime, they must serve in the armed forces when required to. They have to pay taxes to support the services and programs of the government. Good citizens vote in elections to manifest their opinion on how the government should be run. In addition to a national citizenship, people are citizens of a state and a city. They have similar rights and responsibilities in each level of citizenship.
